Re: New ANCA headquarters building

I wanted to share with you that the ANCA Endowment Fund has purchased a new national headquarters - a historic four-story building located in the heart of Embassy Row and amid the nation's leading think tanks.

The newly renovated structure features the latest in computer, communications, and networking technology. It will serve as the home for our national staff and a base for day-to-day cooperation with our regional offices in New York City and Los Angeles, our more than 50 local chapters, and our tens of thousands of ANCA activists around the nation.

As of March 27th, our new address will be:

Armenian National Committee of America
1711 N St NW
Washington, DC 20036

“At its heart, this purchase speaks to our respect for our roots - our enduring historic roots as a people, our grassroots communities around the country, and the deep roots that we have here in the nation's capital.”

-- ANCA Endowment President
Ken Hachikian
